THE GUARDIAN ANGEL OF NEWPORT HARBOR-ELEVEN LIVES SAVED-LIME ROCK AND ITS TENANTS-THE HEROINE REWARDED. Thirty years ago, just at the dawn of a stormy September morning, Grace Darling, the heroic daughter of the Longstone lighthouse-keeper, on the English coast, launched a boat upon the raging tide, and rescued, with her reluctant father's aid, and at the imminent peril of her life, nine persons from the disastrous wreck of the Forfarshire steamer. For this fearless and noble act, done in her 23d year, praises and rewards were heaped upon her in unstinted measure, a fund of $3,500 was subscribed for her benefit, the remaining four years of her life were crowned with every comfort, and her name has passed into current usage as a synonym for an enselfish and herote woman. Two weeks since, toward the close of a stormy March afternoon, Ida Lewis, the intrepid daughter of the Lime Rock light-keeper, in Newport (R. I.) harbor performed a deed that places her side by side, in point of self-sacrificing courage, with the Grace Darling of England, and rounds a career of even greater usefulness in the saving of human life. The rain fell that day in blinding torrents, and the gale drove the waves across the harbor with a fury that taxed the full strength and skill of the most experienced boatmen. In the midst of this storm, a reckless boy, scarcely 14 years old, who had somehow obtained ssion of one of the smallest and most unsafe sail boats in the harbor, (since christened the "soldier drowner,") succeeded in persuading two soldiers, Sergt James Adams, and Private John McLaughlet him carry them across from the city. whither they had gone to make some purchases, to Fort Adams, where they were stationed. Anxious to escape ne dreary three-mile tramp by land, and believing the lad's assertion that he could manage the boat as well as any one, they trusted themselves in it, and made half the trip in safety, but about midway in the harbor a sudden last struck the sall, the startled boy jammed the helm in the wrong direction, the boat capsized in an instant, and the waves relied it twice over, like the veriest cockle shell. For a long half-hour its luckless occupants clung to the keel, and wrestled against the blinding rain and the flerce salt waves with all the energy of despair; but finally the boy's strength was exhausted, his hold relaxed—one clutch at McLaughlin's shoulder, and, with a fronzied laugh mon his lip, he was gone! - nor has any trace of him since been seen. Fast paralyzing with cold and almost bereft of hope the two soldiers saw no choice left but to clasp each other in a last embrace, and sink to a mutual grave-when suddenly, out from the Lime Rock, half a mile away, shot a listle boat, driven by rapid strokes and sure, straight over the bounding waves toward the drowning men. Hope eir breasts again, but faded when they saw in the boat only a slender youth, and a still slenderer was almost reaching over the side to grasp the carest soldier, when his quick-witted stater, crying, Stop, Hosey! weshall be capsized that way !" turned the oat with a well-timed stroke, backed it up, one man was drawn safely in over the stern, another backward pull, another lift, and moment the craft, with its freight of rescued lives, was scudding swiftly through the spray back to the Rock again. The Sergeant was able to stagger on shore, but private McLaughlin had to be carried into the light-house, where both of them received the utmost care and kindness, and were safely conveyed to Fort Adams the next day.

The heroine of this daring exploit was born Feb. 25, 1842, and is thus in her 28th year; but her first rescue of imperiled life dates back to September, 1859, when she was only 17. Four gay young fellows, all about 18 or 20 years of age, and all sons of wealthy gentlemen, one from Philadelphia and the rest from Newport, went out for an evening sail, and one of them, more full of mischief than the others, climbed the mast and upset the boat half a mile from the nearest abore. None of them could swim that distance, night was rapidly coming on, the capsized boat was too light to support more than two or three of them at once, and they were ruefully awaiting the bitter consequences of their mad frollo, when the keeper's daughter, spying them through the dusk, hastened to their relief, and rescued them all from their impending fate. The one who climbed the mast enlisted at the opening of the war, and received a mortal wound at the disastrous battle of Bull Run, but the others are still living, and doubtless cherish gratefully the memory of their youthful preserver.

During the intervening period of ten years, this heroine of the harbor has saved five other lives. One cold and srindy February day, three intoxicated soldiers stole a skiff and set out for the fort. By some drunken reckless ness they soon stove a hole in the bottom, and the boat rapidly filled. Two of the men succeeded in swimming shore again, and were so slarmed at their adventure that they ran away and never came back; but the third clung to the submerged skiif and tried to paddle it with his feet across the harbor. When discovered and picked up, with his hat in his teeth and a be each pocket, he was stiff with cold, and barely escaped perishing in his desperate attempt. The next rescue was in January, 1867. A valuable sheep escaped from those who had it in charge, dived off one of the wharves, and started to swim around the harbor. Three men, who went in pursuit along the fort road, found a skiff and put out to rescue the animal. But the flerce south-east gale was too much for them, the boat began to swamp rapidly, they could not regain the shore, and were staring death in the face when the fearless Ida went to their relief, carried them and the skiff to land, and then went out and saved the sheep! In the remaining instance, it seems that a fine looking but reckless young fellow stole a large sail boat from one of the wharves one Winter evening and put to sea with it, but the gale drove the craft upon the "Little Lime Rock," about a mile from the light, where it sunk, leaving the unlucky thiof clinging to the halyards from midnight till dawn, when the herome reached and picked him up. "There he was," says kiss Lewis, in relating the incident, "shaking, and God-blessing me, and begging to be set on shore, and the last I saw of him he was crawling up the wharf on his hands and knees!" The beroism of Grace Durling was the result of a single noble impulse; the bravery of Ida Lewis is part of her daily life. Sixteen years ago, the light on Lime Rock was established, and Hosea Lowis, a veteran ex-revenue pilot, familiar with the coast from Halifax to Norfolk, became its keeper on the 6th of December, 1353. The southern line of the harbor makes a wide, deep-angled sweep, with the city on one side. Fort Adams two miles off on the opposite point, and Lime Rock midway between, about 302 yards from the shore. This rock commands the widest view of the harbor, and upon it the keeper lived alone three years and a buif. Then a substantial, square, two-story brick house was built, and in June, 1857, his family joined him. Four months later a stroke of paralysis disabled him from all work, and ever since his eldest daughter Ida has been the main-stay of the family. It was she who cared for tier father, and lightened her mother's toil, and watched over her younger sister Harriet, and rowed her brothers Rudolph and Hosea to school, and eked out the light-keeper's slender pittance with her needle and other feminine labors, and flew to the rescue of imperiled life with an instinctive courage that would not let her worst enemy sink without her risking her life to save him.

In personal appearance this Newport heroine scarcely attains the average hight of women, is remarkably slender, and would be thought much nearer 20 than 27. Light brown hair, blue eyes keen but kind, and cheeks pinkflushed, though not round enough for beauty, attract one to a woman whose quick smile and frank and friendly manner more than excuse the inevitable educational deficiencies which such a life must always entail. No one can talk with her without believing her as unselfish as she is fearless, and the fame her heroism has created seems simply to amuse her, without exciting the least vanity. So little has she thought of her own deeds that, when first asked, she had to spend much time in consideration before she could say exactly how many lives she man, able to walk a little, but spending most of the waking hours in his chair. Mrs. Lewis is a free-spoken and hospitable matron, devoted to her family, to her four story-papers, of which Bonner's Ledger is one, and to the care of the lamp whose flame has glistened across the harbor from sunset to sunrise these many years with as sure and unfailing a ray as gleams from any light upon the American coast. Rudolph is a young sailor of 33, now absent on a voyage, and "Mosey" (Hosea) is 20 and a teamster in Newport. Hattie is only 17, and possesses a wealth of personal attractions that many a fair J'ifth-ave, girl might envy. Both the sisters indulge in rings and ear drope, and other vanities dear to the femof their wardrobe, and other vanities dear to ine fem-ing beart, and when they have recourse to the treasures of their wardrobe, accumulated chiefly by Ida's industry, they might easily be mistaken for damsels of high degree. The house in which they live is white-washed till it glistens like snow, and everything is kept scrupulously in extent, divided by a channel, which is bare at low tide, and so utterly barren that not a blade of grass will grow upon it. A arischievous black poodle, two rabbits. mice long ago), a couple of turkeys, and a dozen common fowls give quite a Robinson Crusoe air to the place. The rock is 17 feet above that line. On the landward side is a long, high pier, capped with 15 massive blocks of stone, and here, swinging from the derricks, or rocking on the tide, may be seen the small, square-sterned, well-worn Government boat, black without, and white and green within, in which Miss Lewis has learned to row so well that even the brawny boatmen of the harbor concede her superior skill, and with which most of her rescues have

A portrait of the American Grace Darling, and a pic ture of one of her exploits, were published two years ago in an illustrated paper, and many compliments and requests for photographs ensued. More than one romantie gentleman tried to persuade her to change her name for his, and found a friend indeed, but no wife. Two brothers, seafaring men, from Black Rock, Connecticut, have pressed their suits at Lime Rock with more success, and it is quite probable that both the eisters may be married before another Spring.

It is worth noting, perhaps, that Miss Lewis is rightfully entitled to the extraordinary and unprecedented name of "Idawalley Zoradia," which she inherits from the quaint fancy of her maternal grandfather, an estimable but eccentric Block Island physician. This name, however, she has wisely discarded, and writes herself simply

In France or England, such a heroine would have long since received many honorable and substantial testimonials, but scarcely any gifts were made to Miss Lewis until the two soldiers, rescued on the 29th of March, in-til the two soldiers, rescued on the 29th of March, insisted on her accepting a gold watch and chain of Swiss manufacture, valued at $100. L. Frang, the Boston chromo publisher, sent her last week a kind letter, and half a dozen choice pictures. John Carter Brown, esq., of Providence, and John Auchineloss, esq., of New-York, have each sent her a check for $25; and a Boston gentleman transmitted to her last Friday the sum of $100. An active Newport citizen, of long salt water experience, is rapidly raising in that city and Providence a subscription of $135 for the building of a cedar life-boat, to be finished in the finest style, by one of the best Newport builders, and painted white with a gilt stripe. It is almost certain that this will be completed and presented to Miss Lewis within a few weeks. Another energetic citizen meditates raising a fund for her benefit, this season, from the Summer visitors at Newport, and one or two private enterprises of moment for her benefit are also in progress. In the opinion of the best judges, no truer or more fearless heroine than Ida Lewis ever found a place in the annals of any humane society on either side of the Atlantic, and none more unselfish ever received honors from those whose position or wealth enables them to crown meritorious acts with suitable rewards.

Madame Johannsen, the well-known German prima donna, gave her first annual concert at the Steinway (small) Hall on Saturday last. This lady is one of the most thorough and best educated operatio artists who have appeared in this country, and although the ravages of time have affected her voice, she still retains her artistic cultivation, in which sife is unsurpassed by any artist now on our stage. The charm she infuses into the delivery of the songs of Schumann and other composers of the Ger man romantic school is more delightful to the cultivated musician than the thrilling tones of a young, fresh voice and her renderings of some exceptional roles of German operas, such as the Queen of Night in "Die Zauberflöte," are still reinembered with pleasure by those who have heard them. The programme was more enjoyable than is usual at these small private concerts, and included compositions by Schubert, Feska, Reinecke, Schumann, Gluck, Raff, and Beethoven. Theodore Thomas lent his valuable assistance, and played in coujunction with Ferdinand Von Inten, the young planist. Mad. Johannsen was also assisted by Mr. Fred. Steins (the popular baritone of the Liederkranz Society), Miss Bimeler, and Herr Alves.

The fifth Philharmonic Concert on Saturday night was the poorest of the season. Liszt and Wagner have enjoyed an aggravating prominence on the programme all through the Winter; but on this occasion we had them both together-Liszt's "Der Ideale" and Wagner's "Faust"-and to balance them only Beethoven's earliest symphony. The performance was good, but the pieces were singularly ill-chosen. Mr. Richard Hoffman played a plane concerte of Mendelssohn's admirably, and Madame Gazzaniga, an excellent artist rather past her prime, gave two or three vocal selections.

The Sunday concerts last night at Irving and Steinway Halls were both fully attended. At the former we heard some excellent violin playing by Mr. Edward Mollenhauer, and a remarkable performance on the cornet by that precoclous lad Master R. Mollenhauer. The orchestra continues to improve. Theodore Thomas's series at Steinway Hall is drawing to a close, only two concerts now remaining. In about a month he will resume operations at the Central Park Garden, where, we believe, Mr. Levy the cornet-player has been engaged.

The Cuban Ladies' Relief Association announces a concert, to-night, at Steinway Hall, with Miss Kellogg for the special attraction. Beside the young prima donna, they promise us Ronconi, Lotti, Mariano de Lafuente, and a grand tableau. There is little risk in predicting a tremendous crush.

THE EXCISE LAW.

GERMAN MASS MEETING FAVORING THE AMEND-MENT.

A mass meeting of the Germans of this city favoring the amendment to the Excise law pending before the Legislature was held at the Stadt Theater, yesterday afternoon. About 2,000 persons were present. Supervisor Andrew Willmann called the meeting to order, Supervisor Andrew Willmann called the meeting to order, when, on his motion, Dr. Herman Muhr was elected President, together with a number of Vice-Presidents and secretaries.

The Hon. Marcus Otterbourg was the first speaker. He said that the meeting was not held in the interest of lager beer, but of personal uperty, the Excise Law, as it stands on the statute book now being wrong, and an intolerable act of special legislation. He, with other gentlemen, as delegates of the German Republican Central Committees of this city, had been three times before Committees of the Legislature, asking for the repeal or alteration of the Excise Law. The German ministers of the infitees of the Legislature, asking for the repeal or altera-tion of the Excise Law. The German ministers of the gospel from this city, who had been there too, favoring the maintenance of the law as it now stands, had proved themselves intolerant men, fearing leat they should lessen fliely congregations by an alteration of the law. The Germans of the present meeting did not want to be intol-erant against church-goers, but they claimed, with an equal right, to follow their own pursuit of happiness. The Germans of this city, opposed to the Excise Law, were by no means "bummers," as had been indicated by those ministers before the Committees of the Legisla-ture.

The Rev. Gottfried Schelbel, who spoke next, said that the German ministers who had been before Committees of the Legislature advocating the continuance of the Excise law as it reads now, had done so only as servants of profession, and had not been real representatives of the German element of this city.

Mr. Magnus Gross explained the amendments to the Excise law proposed in the Legislature. He claimed that lager beer belonged to the same kind of drinks as root beer, spruce beer, Choctaw beer, ginger-pop, and cider, which drinks were heaithy only when fermented. Lager beer, containing only a small per cent of alcohol, did not belong to the same kind of intoxicating drinks with which strong wines and distilled liquors must be classed. A legal religious Sunday, the speaker said, was neither in accordance with the Constitution of the United States nor the State of New-York, nor with the Declaration of Indepondence. Mr. Gross then read the following resolutions, which were unaulmously adopted:

Whereas, The question of a modification of the existing Excise law is now pending in the State Legislature, and a few persons have assumed to the manelves to appear before the Legislature in the uame of the German citizens of New-York, in order to epipose any change in the law, and to obstruct the passage in the Senate of the amendment adopted in the Assembly; be it, therefore.

Resolved, That we regret the existence of a law which declares the inability of the people to govern themselves; which rules a portion of the State with exceptional measures, and, in the name and for the interest of a particular class, deptives the majority of a population of one handle to the majority and hence we hereby publicly tender our thanks and promise our support to those members of the Legislature who have roted for the majority; and hence we hereby publicly tender our thanks and promise our support to those members of the Legislature who have roted for the proposed amendments o

EX-PRESIDENT JOHNSON IN NASHVILLE. NASHVILLE, April 10 .- Ex-President Johnson made his promised speech in this city to-day. There about 3,000 men gathered around him, while the portice of the hotel was nearly filled with ladies. In the opening about 3,000 men gathered around him, while the posteto of the hotel was nearly filled with ladies. In the opening part of his speech he thanked the people for their attendance, saying that he appeared before them as a private desired no office at their hands. He then made an extensive review of the national finances and the public debt, which he warned the people never to permit to become a permanent debt. He made a defense of his exercise of the pardoning power that he was not infailible, and may have pardoned some that ought not to have been pardoned, and neglected to pardon others entitled to pardon. He acted from the purest motives and the best judgment with the lights before him. He spoke three-quarters of air hoar to colored persons, many of that class being present, about Moses. He said he had declared them free in Tennessee, when this state was exempted from Lincoln's proclamation. He left them free when he went to Washington, but now on his return found them slaves again, slaves of Loyal Leagues. He intended to free them again. His comments upon the Loyal League ritual were excessively severe. He referred to the disfranchisement of 100,000 white Tennesseens, denounced the League managers, and declared the form of Government in Tennessee unrepublican, and in violation of the Constitution. The speech occupied nearly three hours.

A German named John Van Dreahle was arrested on Saturday charged with driving a large truck, heavily laden, against the wagon of Charles Johnson while crossing from the Bridge-st, ferryboat. The wagon was hauled by a team of mules which were forced overboard, and were extricated with great difficulty. Van Dreahle drove off without taking any notice of the matter. He was held to await examination.

JERSEY CITY.—The body of Anton Olsen was found suspended to a gas-pipe in the Aimshouse at 4 o'clock on Saturday afternoon. The body had evidently been hanging in the position in which it was found for a long time. It was suspended to the gas-pipe by a piece of carpet binding, three feet in length, which had been torn from the carpet in the room. Olsen was committed to the Almshouse on Thursday last for detention, while preparations were being made by the Swedish Consul to send him to Stockholm, where his friends reside. He made a desperate attempt to drown himself on Saturday morning last by plunging into the river at the foot of Pavonin-ave. He was resecued with difficulty, having fought desperately against the efforts of those who sought to save him. In his possession were found about $250 in gold and currency, a passage ticket to Stockholm, and a number of letters which revealed the fact that his melaucholy state of mind was due to disappointment in love.

runners who are driving a flourishing business by swindling countrymen. Their system of operation is old and well secow, but their success in practicing it maintains numerous hordes of sharpers. When they meet a stranger they try to 1-duce him to visit prize jewelry stores, of which there are vany near the corner of Courtlandt and West-sts. Detective Klicauley of the New-Jersey Central Railroad has often been applied to, by unfortunate countrymen, to help them to vecover their losses, but he was unable to make any arrests. On Saturday, however, he warned the gang who visit the Central Depot that they would not be permitted longer to solicit passengers on that side of the river.

HOBOKEN.—Coroner White held an inquest, on Saturday evening, over the body of Richard Ryan, a brakeman upon the Morris and Essex Railroad, who died on Wedneaday last from injuries received on the Saturday preceding at Waterloo. Ryan, in company with another brakeman, was sitting in the caboose, at the rear of a coal train, when the train was stopped at the end of a short curve, without any reason for delay. Another train came around the curve. A disastrous collision occurred; which collided with it, being partially destroyed. Ryan and his companion were injured, the former fatally. The jury, last evening, returned a verdict that the deceased came to his death by injuries received in the collision, and they censured Benjamin F. Haines, the conductor of the train, for his carelessness in bringing his train to a halt in so dangerous a situation. Haines was arrested after the verdict of the jury was given, and held to ball.

Frederick Leochtleiser a German residing in Newark-st., was arrested at late hour on Friday night charged with stabbing and beating John Pullman. The Hudson County Democrat will be issued daily after the ist of May.

BERGEN, N. J.—The Institute closed its third term on Friday afternoon, with music and rhetorical and literary exercises. The exercises were witnessed by a large audlence, and they passed off very pleasantly. HUDSON CITY, N. J.—The Republicans

HUDSON CITY, N. J.—The Republicans lave nominated br. J. Hornblower for Mayor.

NEWARK.—The foreman of Messrs. Bless NEWARK.—The foreman of Messrs. Bless & Drake's smoothing iron manufactory, in Railroad-ave., discovered a man secreted in the factory early saturday morning, and also found that the safe had been damaged by the attempt of some person to open it. The man leaped through a window when he found that he was discovered, and escaped. He was soon afterward found in a pile of sand in which he had sought to hide himself, and was taken into custedy. He was committed for trial. A collection of burglars' tools found near the spot where he had been at work were retained at the police station. Shortly after 6 o'clock on Saturday evening, a kerosene lamp exploded in a frame house in Gray-st., owned and occupied by Henry Roberts. The flames spread rapidly, and in a short time communicated to the brick dwelling adjoining, owned by John Hemmingway, and also to a stable situated in the rear of the lot. The loss on the buildings amounts to about $8,500, partially covered by insurance.

PATERSON, N. J.—John H. Post was drowned at Dundee Lake, near this city, on Friday. His bedy was found on Saturday, with the pockets of his clothes filled with stones. On the bank was a note which led to the conclusion that he committed suicide. He was 25 years of age. He was recently married, but his wife described him... The net proceeds of the Orphans Fair amounted to $4.77...A break occurred in the watermain on East Van Houten-st., near Church-st., on Saturday, causing the water of that section to be cut off yesterday. A serious break occurred also on Broadway.... The sowerage system of this city, owing to mismanagement, gives universal dissatisfaction. The Paterson-st. sewer, below Godwin-st., is below the level of the river, and can be repaired only at great expense. The John-st. sewer, though it has improved property along its route, by draining cellars, is choked up with sand... The charter election takes piace to-day. In the 7th and 8th Wards the Republicans and anti-ring Democrate have fixed on Democratic candidates. The context will be principally in the 3d, 5th and 6th Wards. James Nightingale is the Republican candidate for Mayor, and John Ryle, politically a Republican, but running as a non-partisan, is on the Democratic ticket. Much is staked on the Board of Allerman, as important offices are to be filled, and contract made by them during the year... The Catholics profess to purchase the residence of R. S. Hughes on South-st., for a seminary and chapel, and to abandon the one on upper Broadway... Propositions have been made for purchasing the Colt and Stimson block om Market-st., for a public market.
